July 2013 –May 2014	IBM ISL India Pvt Ltd, Hyderabad India http://www.ibm.com/in Software Developer Project: Distro enablement for power PC 64 bit little endian architecture system. Role: Distro enablement for debian and fedora and upstream integration Responsibilities and achievements: I have worked as a team member for debian and fedora distros enablement and upstream integration team. I have worked in GIT and bugzilla for upstream work. Bugzilla is open source tool where we get the bug information of the packages which is raised by test team. I completed GIT work flow exercise to help upstream and solve bugs. I worked for open source community to introduce IBM new architecture to open source community. The project gave me enormous opportunities to explore my technical and team leading skills. In some assignments, I have assisted my team member as well. I basically dealt with the upstream integration & Launch pad bugs with canonical team. Creating build environment and patches for packages and apply patches to work on new architecture machine and install packages and solve error. Based on installation success send patches to upstream and maintainer of the packages. During upstream work I successfully sent patches to maintainer for bugs raised which is accepted and highly appreciated by IBM and open source community.
